Kleinostheim, Germany – UTA Edenred, a leading mobility service provider in Europe and an Edenred company, and Daimler Truck have agreed to continue their successful partnership for the on-road supply of Heavy Goods Vehicles (HGV) of the Mercedes-Benz Trucks brand and to extend the public charging offer to further countries.

As part of the agreement, UTA Edenred issues two Mercedes ServiceCard cards for Mercedes ServiceCard GmbH & Co. KG. The cards, which feature a UTA Edenred/Mercedes-Benz Trucks co-brand design, include:

- The Mercedes ServiceCard charging card, that provides drivers of battery-electric Mercedes-Benz trucks with access to UTA Edenred's rapidly growing public charging network, which currently comprises around 300 truck-compatible charging stations in 28 countries, including Milence fast-charging stations. The card is available to customers in Germany, Austria and France and will be rolled out in Italy, Spain and other countries in the coming months.
- The Mercedes ServiceCard fuel card gives Daimler Truck customers with their Mercedes-Benz trucks access to UTA Edenred's network of multi-brand fuel stations across Europe, which features more than 68,000 facilities in 37 countries.

Mobility services in UTA's acceptance network – such as toll processing in 27 countries, vehicle cleaning, car park reservations and ferry service bookings – can also be obtained with the two cards, along with Mercedes-Benz Trucks workshop services such as repair and Service 24h breakdown.

Pierre Jalady, General Manager of Edenred Mobility EMEA and CEO of UTA Edenred, says: "The extension of the Mercedes ServiceCard fuel and charging card offering continues a successful partnership that has existed between UTA Edenred and Daimler Truck for over 20 years. I'm particularly pleased with the joint focus on electromobility, which will further shape the transformation in the European transportation and logistics sector."
